

British Journal of Management (BJM)

THREE NEW ASSOCIATE EDITORS SOUGHT

BJM is the flagship journal of the British Academy of Management and is now in its 33rd volume, having been established in 1990 with David Otley as its founding editor. It is highly regarded globally, being rated as a '4' in the Academic Journal Guide and 'A' in the ABDC list; its 2021 impact factor increased to 7.450 with an associated increase in its 5-year impact factor to 7.034. Its ranking continues to rise and BJM is now listed as 41/154 in Business and 48/226 in Management by Clarivate. In 2021 over 553,000 downloads of BJM articles were recorded. The journal continues to perform well and is attracting increasing submissions as one of the leading management journals. We are recruiting three additional Associate Editors and are particularly interested in recruiting female editors and individuals from other under-represented groups in order to increase diversity in our editorial team. We are also interested in hearing from individuals with experience in advanced quantitative methods.

We are looking for senior academics who ideally have experience as an Associate Editor on another journal, or experience as Guest Editors for the special issues in other leading journals, or who have extensive relevant reviewing experience.

The new Associate Editors will join our growing team of 11 Associate Editors with a 3-year appointment.

Please contact the Managing Editor, Emma Missen, at bjm@bam.ac.uk if you would like to apply. We especially encourage applications from female academics. Please include your CV and a covering letter explaining why you would like to be considered. The deadline for applications is 9am on Monday 12th September 2022.

Further information about the British Journal of Management is available at:
<https://onlinelibrary.wiley.com/journal/14678551>